“ My grandpa was an amazing man - he was a true gentleman, loved his family, served his country, and honored our Lord. He understood that a good life is not defined by the car you drive, where you live or what you do for a living - it's determined by how you choose to live - he chose happiness and loving God & others above everything else. In short - he got it. In a world where so many miss the mark by dedicating the majority of their time to acquire more and more things - he chose to acquire only what he needed and spent his quality time with those he loved. He understood what was important and what was not- he got it. Part of him will always live on through the lives that he touched and the example that he set. He was an inspiration and a man of outstanding character. I am so proud to have had the honor to call him my grandfather.
