“ A Requiem for Gloria Winters

Gloria Winters has passed. We now have memories and thoughts of her views and opinions on life to draw upon as her legacy. Of this she was never one to be at a loss for her take on how things should be. While you could either agree or not with her, she always would listen to your side, then determine validity. My personal relationship with her was of a wait and see prospective. Our normal greeting would be: (me) "I thought that I saw your broom in the driveway". (her) "Yes, that's mine, nice to see you too".

Gloria Winters has passed. It will be a very long time before I can accept that she is gone. She has always been an integral part of every aspect in her family's events. She was the glue that kept everyone together. It seemed that whenever there was any turmoil, she would intervene and the issue was settled. This woman lived her life dedicated to making sure that her family was cared for as well as instilling their need for independence. Of all the things that I will miss personally of her is the respect that she had for you, whether agreed with you or not.

She liked my cooking.

Gloria Winters has passed. I'll miss her broom in our driveway.

Even after almost 20 years since I worked with Gloria, this fits her to a tee! I can almost hear her saying these words! I miss "her broom" too.
