“ We met Jerome at McPike Mansion and it was a fast friendship. We were always interested in his stories, they always had some strange twist. Loved his sense of humor. He was concerned with everyone's wellbeing, more than his own. He loved the Mansion as much as it was his. A good man. He is already missed, always loved and never will be forgotten. May Jerome rest peacefully and those who love him rest peaceful in his peace. May God use his new technician to his fullest.
