“ To understand the pain your going through is impossible. But to give a open heart and open arms welcome whenever needed is what i can do. You have the most beautiful loving family i have ever seen and I wish and hope you years of love and confort. I love you all. Patty you have no idea how much james is like you. You two are such amazingly strong people. Embrace the love i feel everytime i walk in your home. You will always be in my heart and Jesse will forever remain in my memories. He was such a great guy. You did amazing work raising your boys. Always be proud.

“ I will never forget meeting you for the first time. We were 14 year old kids and it felt like I knew you my whole life. You always found laughter in everything, even if it wasn't funny :) and always, always smiled. You would make fun of my shortness and then give me a hug and tell me that one day I will be taller. You taught me how to Time Warp, beat Sonic, learn patience and just enjoy life. You were and will always be a great friend. A huge majority of my teenage years was spent with you and I hold a special place for you in my heart. I love you Jess.

“ "Not Lost But Gone Before"

It's hard for me to be sad. I know Scotty was jumping for joy to see his big brother coming. They are in the presence of God, playing the most awesome video game that's better than we can even imagine, giggling like little girls, eating their grandma's smores. Not only does his spirit live on but so does his physical body through his choice to be a tissue donor. I'm so proud of that selfless decision.

I will celebrate his life always !! He's FOREVER YOUNG.

Love You Jesse !!
